Directions

1. Cut an X into the bottom of the tomatoes. Some chefs also like to cut off the stem at this point to allow a better heat penetration.
2. Bring a pot of water to a rolling boil. Drop the tomatoes into the water, after 10 - 15 sec., depending on the tomato's age & ripeness, remove them with a slotted spoon. Plunge the tomatoes into very cold ice water.
3. Pull away the skin. If the tomatoes were properly blanched, the skin will slip easily away and there will be very little flesh clinging to the skin.
4. Cut the peeled tomatoes in slices of 0.8 cm thickness. Place them on small plates.
5. Take the Mozzarella cheese out of their packaging. Remove any brine by washing it under cold running water. Blot dry the cheese. Cut the Mozzarella cheese in small slices of 0.5 cm thickness. (Use a very sharp knife for that.)
6. Variantly layer one slice of tomato and one slice of Mozzarella cheese.
7. Sprinkle with salt, white pepper & dried basil.
8. Finally sprinkle over some olive oil and some Balsamico vinegar but don't pool the plate.

Directions

1. Cut off the ends of the cucumber & peel it using a (vegetable peeler).
Cut thin slices of the cucumber.
Fill in a bowl moderately sized.
Season it with salt & white ground pepper.
Stir carefully everything.
2. Put the bowl with the seasoned cucumbers aside for 45 min. until the salt extracts the liquid from the cucumbers. This extract builds the season pickle and its special taste.
3. Pour in the vinegar. Stir again carefully.
4. Finally add the oil.
This must be done at the end because the oil will close any seasoning development and emulsify with the vinegar/gained cucumber pickle juice.
5. Store refrigerated.
Take out of the fridge 0,5 hour before service & serve in a small bowl accompanying to the main course.

Directions

1. Cleaning the iceberg lettuce:
Remove the outer, wilted leaves.
Cut out the core.
Halve the lettuce, cut it into long strips, and then into bite-sized pieces / leaves.
Thoroughly wash the chopped lettuce in cold water and spin dry.
2. Wash the cucumbers, peel them, cut them lengthwise into quarters, remove the seeds, and cut into bite-sized pieces.
3. Wash the tomatoes, remove the stem, and cut into even pieces.
4. Cook the eggs in boiling water for 9 - 11 minutes, cool in ice water, and peel.
5. Cut the ham and Edam cheese into strips.
6. Place the tuna from the can in a sieve and drain.
7. Place the corn from the can in a sieve, rinse under hot water, and drain.
8. Arrange the iceberg lettuce in a bowl and garnish with cucumber pieces, tomatoes, corn, eggs, ham and cheese strips, and tuna pieces.

Italian or French dressing goes well with this.

Directions

1. First wash and then peel the white radish.

You have 2 options:

2. Cut in thin slices with a sharp knife.
Or (if on hand) use a "spirali" slicer and cut the white radish in garlands like an accordion.
3. Combine the vinegar with the salt and the sugar.
Stir well until salt and sugar dissolves.
4. Add the mustard and stir until it emulsifies. Now add the oil and the chives. Stir again.

For service:

5. Place the slices or garlands of the white radish on plates and sprinkle with the vinegar/oil dressing so called "vinaigrette".
6. Serve immediately.

Directions

Blanch the green beans in a pot of boiling water for until AL DENTE.

Drain & shock in ice water.

While the beans are cooking, prepare the tomatoes, onion, and olives.

Drain the tuna and break it into large pieces.

In a bowl, gently combine the beans, tomatoes, onions, tuna, and olives. Season with salt and pepper.

Arrange the salads on plates and garnish with quartered eggs.

Serve with light VINAIGRETTE dressing

NOTE

The Salade Niçoise is a classic French dish that originates from the city of Nice. This salad variation is known for its fresh, Mediterranean flavors and the use of high-quality ingredients typical of the region. It combines different tastes and textures in one dish and is ideal for enjoying a light yet nutritious snack on warm days. The variety of fresh ingredients makes this salad not only delicious but also very healthy.

A dip or dip sauce is a common condiment for many types of food. Dips are used to add flavour or texture to foods such as pita bread, crackers, raw vegetables (crudités), fruit, seafood, diced meat and cheese, potato chips, tortilla chips, falafel and sometimes even whole sandwiches in the case of gravy. Unlike other sauces, the sauce is not poured over the food, but the food is usually dipped or pressed into the sauce. Dips are often used for finger food, appetisers and other types of food. Thick dips based on sour cream, crème fraîche, yoghurt, mayonnaise, white cheese or beans, avocado or aubergine are thicker than spreads, which can be diluted to make dips. Dips in various forms are eaten all over the world, and sauces have been used for dipping for thousands of years.

NOTES

Greece & Turkey are real dip strongholds, where they are part of the variety of mezze, the famous sumptuous starter platters. Well-known dips include tzatziki & taramasalata, as well as feta creams, aubergine dips & spicy paprika-based spice pastes such as the Turkish acili ezme. Hummus & baba ganoush come from Arabic cuisine – creamy dips made from chickpeas or aubergine, sesame paste and spices. Dipping is also popular in Asia, where soy sauce, sweet chilli sauce and peanut sauce are popular accompaniments to sushi, spring rolls and dim sum. Of course, you can also dip sweet foods.
